Coolidge Urges Tax and Farm Marketing Relief

President's Annual Message to Congress Leaves Specific Methods to Legislators—Suggests Treasury Surplus Should Not Be Regarded As Warranting Permanent Tax Revision, and Farm Relief Should Shun Anything Savoring of Price Fixing.

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP).—Some form of temporary tax relief, and "a sound solution," if possible, of the farm marketing problem were urged by President Coolidge today in his annual message to Congress.

He left the specific methods to the legislators themselves, stipulating only that a prospective $383,000,000 Treasury surplus should not be regarded as warranting a permanent tax revision, and that in approaching the farm relief problem Congress should shun anything savoring of price-fixing.

The President also suggested that steps should be taken "at an early day" to transfer the Philippines from the military to the civil branch of the Government; proposed that something be done to end the "great inconvenience and expense" caused by lowering the level of the Great Lakes; renewed his stand for the protective tariff and for complete observance of prohibition; again pledged his administration to economy; and laid down a long list of other suggestions, although conceding that in the short session no extensive program of general legislation would be possible.

The message contained no mention of the World Court, a subject which he said in his Kansas City speech he would not again submit to the Senate. Nor was there any direct reference to Mexico.

Message Read by Clerks.

Following his custom of last year, Mr. Coolidge sent his message to Capitol Hill by messenger, and it was read by clerks in senate and house shortly after noon.

Over 1,000 Nominations.

At the same time he added to the crowded senate calendar more than 1,000 nominations to public office, including many postmasters throughout the country.

Other Suggestions.

His suggestions on other questions included:

Broadening and strengthening of the Federal agricultural agencies.

Revision of the livestock grazing regulations.

Continuation of reclamation developments.

Development of Muscle Shoals with cheaper fertilizers in view.

Development of the Mississippi and Colorado rivers, and of rivers and harbors generally.

A Great Lakes-to-the-sea canal along a route yet to be chosen.

Railroad consolidation; and simplification of the process of valuing railroad properties.

Coal control legislation.

Adequate military and naval preparedness.

Support of the Geneva preliminary conference and other movements for the reduction of competitive armaments.

Enactment of such prohibition enforcement legislation as the Treasury may recommend.

Branch banking legislation.

Renewal of the charters of banks in the Federal Reserve System.

Radio control under the Department of Commerce.

Adequate care of disabled veterans, but no extension of the pension system.

Return of alien property.

"Fair salaries" for Federal judges.

One-man control of the Government merchant fleet.

Anti-lynching legislation.

Permanent Tax Reduction Unwarranted.

In the face of the estimated Treasury surplus, the Chief Executive said there was "no reason why a balanced portion of surplus revenue should not be applied to a reduction of taxation," but he contended that any permanent reduction would not be warranted at this time with the Government conducting a going business of nearly $4,000,000,000 annually.

"Meantime," he added, "it is possible to grant some real relief by a simple measure making reductions in the payments which accrue on the 15th of March and June, 1927. I am very strongly of the conviction that this is so much a purely business matter that it ought not to be dealt with in a partisan spirit. * * *

"These are my convictions stated with full knowledge that it is for the Congress to decide whether they judge it best to make such a reduction or leave the surplus for the present year to be applied to prepayment of the war debt. That also is eventually tax reduction."

Avoid Price Paying.

In working out the surplus farm crop problem to any sound conclusion, he advised that it was "necessary to avoid putting the Government into the business of production or marketing or attempting to enact legislation for the purpose of price fixing."

"It is unfortunate," he added, "that no general agreement has been reached by the various agricultural interests upon any of the proposed remedies. Out of the discussion of various proposals which can be had before the Committee of Agriculture some measure ought to be perfected which would be generally satisfactory."

Southern Cotton Situation.

Recounting the efforts of his special cotton committee to aid southern producers, the President said:

"As a result of this cooperation sufficient funds have been pledged to finance the storage and carrying of 4,000,000 bales of cotton. Whether those who own the cotton are willing to put a part of their stock into this plan depends on themselves. The Federal Government has cooperated in providing ample facilities. No method of meeting the situation would be adequate which does not contemplate a reduction of about one-third in the acreage for the coming year. The responsibility for making the plan effective lies with those who own and finance cotton and cotton lands."

Filipinos Should Be Fit.

The Philippines, Mr. Coolidge said, should not be turned back to the people "until they are both politically fitted for self-government and economically independent," but he suggested that at no time would the United States abandon completely responsibility for their defense. He suggested encouragement of the movement for development of the rubber and other resources of the Islands, but only with the approval of the Philippine people.

Causes of Prosperity.

The prosperity of the country the President reported as wide-spread and based upon economy, the reduction of waste and a general raising of the standards of efficiency, and all predicated on the foundation of a protective tariff.

There has come about, he asserted, "the perfectly astonishing result of a reduction in the index price of commodities and an increase in the index rate of wages."

Storm Toll Is Placed at 16 Dead

New England Reported 12 Dead, New York Three and New Jersey One—Considerable Damage To Shipping—Many Traffic Tieups.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Northeastern states and eastern Canada today counted a toll of 16 dead from record breaking early season low temperatures and snowfall of the past few days which also caused ice blockades that threatened to tie up lake and river shipping for the winter.

There were 12 dead in New England alone while New York recorded three and New Jersey one. Considerable suffering was also reported and the larger cities spent thousands of dollars for the removal of snow, which in places reached a depth of 12 inches. Rail and automobile traffic was rapidly approaching normal, however.

No deaths were reported at sea or in inland waters, although there was considerable damage to shipping. Fourteen steamers were ice bound in the St. Lawrence river in Quebec, 12 vessels were wrecked off Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and fishing and barge fleets in several ports were crippled.

At Lockport, N. Y., an ice jam blocked canal gates and held up west bound barges, probably the last fleet of the season, until a tug succeeded in breaking through. At Whitehall, 26 boats bound south from Lake Champlain were ice locked and 40 other craft were tied up at various points along the barge canal. A passageway was broken through yesterday, but rather than risk being frozen in the canal, skippers had their craft towed back into the harbor in Lake Champlain.

New York, Albany, Rochester and Boston suffered greatly from traffic snarls due to the heavy snowfall. Boston's fall of ten inches was the heaviest pre-Christmas snow since 1901. County roads in some sections were impassable. Warmer weather to be followed by rain was the forecast for today.

Progressive Pinochle Party.

The J. O. C. A. M. band will hold a progressive pinochle party at Machinaw's Hall, 14 Henry street, this evening, at 8 o'clock.

Zero Weather Gripped City

As Low As 15 Degrees Below Reported in Sections of Kingston During Monday Night—River and Creek Frozen Tight—Ferry Still Running.

Following the heavy snow fall of Sunday the weather gradually grew colder during the day on Monday, and during the night the temperature rapidly dropped until in certain sections of Kingston as low as 15 degrees below zero were recorded. At 7 o'clock this morning thermometers in the uptown business section registered as low as 10 degrees below zero, and in the downtown section they registered 7 below zero.

The cold wave continued in force throughout the day although the sun shone brightly, making it an ideal winter day which was enjoyed to the utmost by the children who crowded the hills of the city with their sleds during the school noon hour and also after school. Due to the fact that the city snow plows had opened up the streets and hills to traffic the coasting on the hills was exceptionally good.

The Hudson river is filled with ice from Poughkeepsie to Albany, which averages in thickness from an inch to several inches. The ice is much thicker owing to the heavy fall of snow Sunday which with the zero weather has helped in form snow ice. The Rondout creek was again frozen over from shore to shore.

So far the ice has not been of sufficient thickness to interefere with the running schedule of the ferry Transport.

The cold wave has also formed ice of sufficient thickness to skate on in the smaller ponds of water.

Congress Hears Coolidge Message

Reading of President's Message Constitutes Chief Business of Day—Oklahoma's Democrat Has Plan for Farm Relief—Impromptu Reception for Senator Wagner.

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP).—Receipt of the presidential message was the chief business of the day in both senate and house. While its committees worked on the appropriation bills the house agreed to early adjournment out of respect for Uncle Joe Cannon. The senate went ahead, however, with the resolution questioning the qualifications of Senator Gould of Maine, first on the calendar.

The brevity of the house session did not preclude members from adding materially to the thousands of bills awaiting action. Among the new proposals was the session's first plan for settlement of the farm relief question. It was introduced by Representative McKeown, Democrat, Oklahoma, and was designed to standardize the production of cotton, wheat and other farm products when a surplus causes an "unfair return."

CONGRESS HEARS 2—

Senate and house presented a colorless scene as the clerks intoned the presidential message. Most of the members were present, but many talked in undertones to colleagues, while others drifted in and out, preferring to read the presidential utterances for themselves from the printed record.

In the senate there was so much confusion that Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, interrupted the reading to ask for "order on the Republican side." After that, there was less noise, but apparently no more attention.

Senator-Elect Wagner of New York held an impromptu reception in a corner of the chamber, with Senator Copeland doing the honors.

U. S. SENATOR McKINLEY NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE

Martinsville, Ind., Dec. 7 (AP).—United States Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois still clung feebly to life today. Since yesterday his physicians have said death was only a matter of a few hours.

The Senator's pulse was "barely discernible", and his respiration was "irregular and labored," according to his physician, Dr. R. H. Egbert, after an examination at 8:30 a. m.

No Cases Ready In Supreme Court

Judge Russell Finds Weather and Other Conditions Prevent Prompt Despatch of Business—Jurors Delayed by Frozen Autos.

No cases were ready for trial in supreme court this morning at 10 o'clock when court convened and Judge Russell excused the jurors until 12 o'clock Wednesday. Court recessed until 12:30 o'clock today when a day calendar will be made up for Wednesday.

Several of the extra jurors called Monday afternoon were in court ready for business while others who reside a distance out into the country were unable to reach the city in time for the morning session but were expected at the afternoon session of court. Several jurors reported late, stating they had been delayed by frozen cars and cars which refused to start on account of the extreme cold weather.

Several cases which are ready to be tried at this term could not be called as witnesses who reside in the country districts were unable to reach town on account of the severe weather and the snow fall of Sunday. These cases will be taken up when weather conditions permit.

Judge Russell announced that he would try the negligence action on the calendar brought by Nolle H. Van Wagner against Carl Schentzen. The action, once before tried and resulting in a disagreement, is brought to recover for personal injuries sustained in an automobile crash at Cold Brook. Judge John G. Van Etten asked the court to set the case down for some day certain in order that it be tried at this term. This Judge Russell was unable to do but stated that he would see that the case was disposed of.

30 More Jurors for Supreme Court

Many Trial Jurors Seek to Be Excused from Duty at Present Term of Supreme Court—Judge Russell Orders More Names Drawn.

The December term of the Supreme court in Ulster county was convened Monday afternoon with Judge Pierce R. Russell of Troy presiding. All of the grand jurors but two were present. Four presented legal excuses and were excused by the court. J. Wells Weaver of Lloyd was made foreman of the grand jury.

There is but comparatively little work for the grand jury at this term of court with perhaps a dozen cases to be investigated. The grand jury will be in session about a week unless additional cases are presented.

30 Additional Trial Jurors.

The trial jurors, however, were less willing to serve than the grand jurors and when the call for excuses was made by Deputy County Clerk Geroldsek practically the entire panel moved forward and presented excuses. Fourteen of the jurors were excused by the court, two were out of the county and not served and two were ill. Judge Russell ordered 30 additional names drawn from the county box.

Day Calendar Uncertain.

An uncertain day calendar was made up of five cases but all of the cases involved out of town attorneys who were not in court, having had local attorneys place the cases on the day calendar.

Two cases, No. 87, Peter O'Rico against James Turck, and No. 331, O. Ray Hiltebrant against Joseph Funko and another, were moved on the inquest calendar to be tried by the court.

One Case Settled.

No. 347, William N. Simpson against Barney Rogovin and another, an action for money judgment, was announced as settled. John W. Eckert appeared for plaintiff and William D. Cunningham for the defendant.

Court went into recess until 10 o'clock this morning.

Judge Russell Meets Lawyers.

Prior to the opening of court Judge Russell was introduced to members of the Ulster County Bar Association by John W. Eckert and County Clerk John H. Saxe.

JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER AGAIN HEATED

The cold wave worked havoc at the Jewish Community Center on Broadway Monday, when one of the large sections of the boiler in the heating apparatus burst. The water ran from the boiler and the fire in the heater was extinguished, heating the hall, meeting rooms and school without any heat. The water pipes froze.

Van Jesen Brothers, Strand plumbers, were called and went to work thawing out the water pipes and repairing heating appliances in order to keep the school rooms and hall warm. They have completed the work and have the building well heated for and have the concert to be held in the Chatfield concert to be held in the Jewish Community Center on Wednesday evening, December 8, by the Young Judea Society.

Lutheran Circle Postponed Meeting.

The Sewing Circle of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, corner of Wurts and Rowes streets, will not meet on Wednesday, December 8, as announced but will meet on December 15.

Two Men Die in Gun Battle With Foreign Workers

Policeman Stahl Is Shot To Death By Foreign Track Workers In Freight Car Stronhold—Unidentified Worker Also Slain.

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP)—Police and posses from a dozen west side suburbs participated in an attack with gas bombs and guns on the freight car stronghold of foreign track workers in a desolate railroad yard early today after two men, one a policeman, had been slain and two men wounded in a preliminary skirmish.

The dead are Policeman Lyman J. Stahl, 28, and an unidentified railroad worker, said by police to be of Mexican extraction. Policeman Charles Kolwintz and a third member of the besieged force were wounded before the marauders crawled from gas filled cars and were captured.

The scene of the fight is an isolated area a mile and a half west of Melrose Park, in the railroad wards. A settlement of foreign workers used seven freight cars on a siding as homes.

First news of the trouble came in an alarm over the telephone to the Melrose Park station that a woman had been assaulted by a group of intoxicated men in the vicinity.

Policeman Stahl and his partner, Kolwintz, sped to the scene in a police car. As they moved toward the camp a volley of pistol shots was directed at them.

The slugs came from two freight cars standing apart from the other five. Stahl's body was riddled by lead and he fell mortally wounded. Two men ran toward the policeman waving smoking pistols.

Kolowintz dropped one of them, but was himself wounded by the other. The officer dropped to the ground and emptied his pistol at the other attacker, killing him.

The barrage of shots aroused the neighborhood, and as the word was relayed from suburb to suburb, reinforcements began to arrive. Three squads of Chicago detectives, armed with tear gas bombs and shotguns, aided in the assault, which resulted in the capture of 33 men and one woman.

Variety of Cases In Police Court

Margaret Taylor, colored, was arraigned before Judge Shufeldt this morning in police court after having spent the night in jail on a disorderly conduct charge. Margaret was taken into custody by Officers Keresman and Relyea Monday night on Abeel street due to her actions and improper language. The case was adjourned until a future date.

The case of Leo Pold, who was taken into custody by the police some time ago for staging a fight on Delaware avenue near Third avenue, was adjourned due to the illness of the defendant. Pold is quite seriously ill of pneumonia.

John F. Corcoran of Post street, who was arrested on a warrant obtained by Mrs. Isabel Smith of High Falls, charging him with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and causing her serious injury, was discharged, due to the failure of the complainant to appear against him.

Mrs. Smith was a passenger in Corcoran's car when it collided with the car owned and driven by a man named Davis at the corner of Wall and Marius streets some time ago. Mrs. Smith was quite badly injured and her baby, who was in her arms, escaped with a shaking up. Corcoran was also injured in the accident.

The case against A. Cohen was settled before Judge Shufeldt when Mr. Cohen was discharged. He was charged with petit larceny by Morris Berman.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7 (AP).—More than half a million voters at the recent election failed to express an opinion on the prohibition referendum, which received an affirmative plurality of 1,164,586, it was revealed Monday when the State Board of Canvassers met in the office of Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state, to certify the state returns.

The "Yes" vote on the referendum was 1,763,070, while 598,484 persons voted "No". The number not voting on the question was 546,236. It was carried in forty-two counties, defeated in twenty, and in nine the result was close. New York city's five boroughs gave a "Yes" vote of 1,007,598, a "No" vote of 156,617, and blanks and voids totalling 112,701.

Their totals were: 1,342,627 and 1,328,062 respectively. Hezekiah D. Wilcox, Socialist, received 81,800 votes.

Robert F. Wagner defeated James W. Wadsworth, Jr., for the United States senatorship by a plurality of 116,217. Franklin W. Cristman, running as an independent Republican on a dry platform, piled up a total of 231,906, but did not carry a county. Wagner carried the five counties in New York city and also Albany county. The state vote was: Wagner, 1,321,163; Wadsworth, 1,205,246. Jessie Hughan, Socialist, polled 73,412.

Edward Corning, elected lieutenant governor on the Democratic ticket, had an official margin of 98,274 votes over Seymour Lowman, Republican incumbent. The vote was: Corning, 1,398,856; Lowman, 1,300,582; August Claessens, Socialist, received 86,844 and Ella McCarthy, Prohibitionist, 17,303.

Morris S. Tremaine, Democrat, was elected state comptroller over Vincent B. Murphy, incumbent, by 73,142 votes. Charles W. Noonan, Socialist, received 85,493 and Neil Cranmer, Prohibitionist, 26,398.

Representative Mills carried fifty-three of the sixty-two counties in the state. Governor Smith was victorious in Albany, Bronx, Clinton, Kings, New York, Oneida, Queens, Rensselaer and Richmond counties, and in several others was close behind Mills. In 1924 the governor carried six counties, but in that year his total vote was 103,393 more than this fall, while Mills ran 242,313 votes behind Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's total in 1924. The figures then were: Smith, 1,627,111; Roosevelt, 1,518,552.

Kings county contributed the heaviest vote to the Socialist's total, Panken receiving 21,948 there. Hamilton county gave him a lone ballot. Very few names of persons other than the regularly nominated candidates were written in by the voters this year, the canvassers reported.

Wagner, Corning, Tremaine and Stolz carried all the counties in New York city, and in addition were successful in Albany county. Cristman ran ahead of Wagner in Allegany, Chautauqua, Chenango, Cortland, Steuben, Tompkins, Wayne, Wyoming and Yates counties. His largest vote was in Monroe county, where he polled 12,160. New York city's five boroughs gave him a total of 13,456.

Excess of Gratitude Not a Common Fault

Gratitude, in many people, is only a strong and secret desire for further favors. I believe it was Goethe who wrote: "He who is not grateful for a favor may be likened to one who muddies the spring from which his thirst was quenched."

When gratitude, I heard another say, has become a matter of reasoning, there are many ways of escaping its bonds This is only another manner of saying that he who expects gratitude is a merchant, not a benefactor. Gratitude, which the ancients always painted in the brightest colors, is one's duty, but it is not an inalienable right one is at liberty to exact. Honore de Balzac, in probably one of his less lucid moments, wrote that gratitude was a foolish word; that, though appearing in the dictionary, it could never be found in the hearts.—Frank Hanson, in Los Angeles Times

How to Get What You Want For Christmas.

Brother asked for a nice new roadster,
Sister asked for a Paisley shawl,
Mother asked for a dinner service,
Dad asked for nothing at all.

Brother and sister were disappointed.
And mother is also blue,
For none of them has got what was wanted.
But daddy's wish came true.

The teacher asked little Ruth what her father's name was.

"Daddy," she answered.

"Yes, dear," said the teacher, "but what does your mother call him?"

"She don't call him nuthin'," Ruth answered, earnestly. "She likes him."

Rice—"You say that the pretty girl defendant kissed one of the jurors after she was acquitted? What did the juror do?"

Winton—"Oh, he made a motion for a new trial."

You can't do your own thinking and follow the crowd, too.

Nurse (to housemaid)—"Baby's got her mamma's complexion."

Father from next room)—"Nurse, are you letting that child play with those paints?"

Hid Stolen Gold in Eye

The death of the owner of a "pub" at Kalgoorlie, western Australia, recently revealed a unique theft from the gold mines many years ago. In his youth the man had lost an eye in an explosion and a glass one had been substituted in the socket. A cavity at the back of this furnished a hiding place for gold stolen from the mine, and though the miner stole only a small bit of gold each day, his revenue from this source was about $40 a week. Before his death the man told his friends that he had stolen several thousand dollars worth of gold, but that he retired and bought a "pub," fearing he might arouse suspicion.

New Name for Old Dish

A correspondent of the Daily Chronicle of London, who traveled by rail from Bucharest to Craeow, writes:

"As is the custom on transcontinental trains, the menu for each meal was printed in the language of the country through which the train was passing at the time. Thus I had selected my lunch in Roumania, but at dinner was confronted by a Polish menu. I chose 'tomatoes,' which somehow suggested an Esperanto delicacy. What was my delight when a dish of ham and eggs was placed before me!"

Fools' Paradise

The Startling Story of a Girl's Great Folly

AS secretary to Fred Joyce, the prominent attorney, Jane's position was a fortunate one. Yet she was unhappy. She longed to escape from the sordid world of business into a world of freedom and gaiety.

One day her employer said: "Let's take a holiday. A long one. We'll do Paris, London, and the Continent. I'll buy you everything your heart desires. Will you go?"

Jane's senses whirled. But instinct warned her to refuse. Then Joyce slipped a magnificent rope of pearls around her neck. "Will you accept them?" her tempter whispered. Her head swam. His promise of luxury rose vividly in her imagination. She fought for strength to say no! But he read her answer in her eyes.

Had Jane counted the cost she would have destroyed herself rather than enter that mad compact.

Her pitiful story, entitled "My Dangerous Paradise", appears in January True Story Magazine. Don't miss it!

"True Story a Great Teacher"— Says Prominent Minister

I think True Story Magazine is an excellent publication. Its stories are couched in language which will not give offense to the most fastidious. It teaches the great lesson of caution in dealing with life and sounds a warning to young people such as every pulpit aims to declare. The greatest lessons are those gleaned from experience. Therefore, in the experiences related in its pages, the great lessons of life are clearly taught. I would like to see TRUE STORY MAGAZINE in every home in the land.

Very truly yours,
Rev. Wm. L. Robinson.

"My Taste of Life"—This is a story of a woman's discontent—of a woman who had every comfort that money can buy, including a loyal husband's love—but who longed for the gay lights of the city, the revelry of the night clubs, theatres, dancing, dining. An invitation to visit a friend for a few weeks gave her the excuse she wanted. She went. Every girl, every wife, who is deluded by the so-called gay life of the city should read this startling true-life narrative.

TO SAVE SAINT SOPHIA.

The proposition of the American Institute of Architecture for the restoration of the church or mosque of Saint Sophia in Constantinople will interest many lovers of ancient art throughout the world, for the venerable edifice is said to be "not only the supreme masterpiece of Byzantine art but one of the greatest masterpieces of all time", the wonderful mosaics on a gold ground which enrich the walls and dome being still to a large extent preserved, in spite of the war-shocks and vandalism of centuries. The restoration proposition would more widely appeal if the hope of centuries had been realized and the Turks had been driven out of Europe at the end of the World War. But Allied disagreement and conflicting "politics" permitted the Turks to dictate the treaty at Lausanne confirming their possession of European territory, thus preventing Saint Sophia in Constantinople from being restored to the Christian Church.

St. Sophia was a Christian Church for more than nine centuries. It was built by the Emperor Justinian and dedicated on Christmas, A. D. 538. The Turks converted it into a mosque after their conquest in 1453. No reader of Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" can ever forget his description of the tragic scenes within the old church, where Christian fugitives sought refuge, hoping, many believing, that they were to receive heavenly protection. But the Turks broke in and hacked and hewed until they were sated of blood. Then Christian ladies of high rank were shackled with male slaves and dragged away into bondage. Yet even now there are marvels of art in this historic and storied edifice which has rocked before the winds of nearly fourteen centuries.

BEWARE OF OVERWEIGHT.

It has been widely supposed that added weight with advancing years is normal, even wholesome, but this supposition is rudely upset by Health Culture (New York), which urgently advises that aging persons find out their proper weight by accepted standards and then reduce twenty pounds below it. The popular idea that a man who weighs 147 pounds at 25 should weigh 162 at 50 is discredited, such additional weight on wearying organs being likened to the piling of additional weight on a race horse. We are told that "corpulence is not a comedy; it is tragedy"—

It causes pain, disability, inefficiency, and, worst of all, it shortens life, directly by clogging the wheels of being; indirectly by decreasing and weakening the powers of resistance. The seemingly strong healthy man is the worst of all possible subjects for pneumonia, typhoid, or influenza, and no surgeon, however bold, will fear to declare that he dreads to operate upon a fat patient. Practically all deaths under anesthetics have occurred among the corpulent. Moreover, overweight is regarded askance by those practical people who assess the value of lives for insurance. It is not only a question of the disabling effect of the mere burden of superimposed fat; it is also a question of the fatty tissue invading and supplanting the proper heart tissue, so that the organ is both mechanically handicapped by overweight, and vitally handicapped by a degeneration of its essential constituents. In extreme cases all the organs suffer in much the same way.

Though in this view a single cause of trouble may be overstressed the man of overweight is duly warned to exercise in the open air, to walk regularly instead of lazily sitting in a car for a trip of two or three city blocks.

WE HAVE NO MONOPOLY.

All the agricultural woes are not confined to the United States. In the Isle Wite Island, the British Ministry of Agriculture, has been solemnly sitting on the state of the British egg, and has issued a lot printed report of the same. The traditional English dish of bacon and eggs is apparently English only in name. The bacon comes from the United States, and the eggs from all parts of the world. The alien egg, according to the report, has driven out the product of the native British hen.

The Latvian, the Esthonian, the Norwegian and the Irish egg, together with the Danish, the German, and the Polish egg, have caught the British taste. Twenty million pounds sterling a year are being spent on alien eggs, and the ministry makes the formal recommendation that the English agriculturist give himself over seriously to raising British hens that will lay British eggs. Meanwhile by a little order in Council, they intend to boost the rates to make the entry of the alien egg a little harder, and its cost a little higher to the British consumer.

That Body of Yours

AIR HUNGER.

The great needs of the body as you know are food and drink.

An expression is now coming into general use that shows how physicians and laymen are turning their thoughts toward another need, that is the air.

For years the matter of air was taken for granted. It is all about you, and you breathe it continuously day and night.

However despite the fact that it costs nothing, many individuals find it hard to get, or in other words they are hungry for air at times, or even all the time.

Now anyone who has had this air hunger will tell you that the feeling of partial suffocation is most distressing and alarming. In former days we thought of air hunger as being due to some defect of the lungs, which either prevented the fresh air coming in, or the impure air from going out. This might be due to the nerve supply to the lung, or to mechanical disturbances.

Perhaps the composition of the blood itself was such that it interfered with the action of the nerves of respiration.

However when a physician is called to relieve air hunger his first thought now is that the heart is not doing its work properly. But as a matter of fact, the heart and lungs work together, and the cause of this air hunger may be due to either heart or lungs.

Dr. Hoover of Cleveland has been pointing out that if he finds in examining the patient that the skin is warm then it is not the heart that is the fault. Because if the heart were not doing its work it would not get the blood to the surface so well.

To prove this point Dr. Leas, also of Cleveland, has devised a method for estimating the heat loss from the lungs.

In a normal person the heat loss by the lungs is 10 per cent of the total but where the heart is affected it may be up to 35 per cent. That means that the loss of heat by way of the skin is reduced that much and so the skin in heart ailments, where there is air hunger, is cold.

What about this for you?

If you find yourself hungry for air, it may be due to nervousness, or to your imagination.

If there is a true air hunger it may possibly be due to obstructions in the nose and throat.

When you are really ill and are hungry for air, the physician decides just whether it is heart or lungs and treats you accordingly.

RECENT NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE TRADES

Retail deliveries of 4,419 new motor cars and trucks by Dodge Brothers dealers in United States and Canada during the week ended November 27 have exceeded all previous weekly records established during the last quarter of any year.

Plant expansion that will increase Oldsmobile production facilities one-third is now being made by Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan.

This expansion program is actuated by the demands of the Oldsmobile dealer organization for more cars. During the past year retail orders were received in greater numbers than the manufacturing facilities to the factory could produce cars, even when operating at peak capacity. This expansion provides for a daily production of 500 Oldsmobiles.

The Auburn Automobile Company will soon introduce a new line of straight eight models within the immediate price range of the most elite sizes and far below any straight eight yet manufactured.

All production, shipment and sales records for Chrysler cars were broken in October. Shipments for the month reached the new level of 22,124 cars. This was a gain of 19 per cent over September, when the former plant record of 18,761 cars was registered, and a gain of 51 per cent over October, 1925, when 14,632 cars were shipped.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

The Theatrical Life of New York Really Began With Opening of John Street Theatre, December 7, 1762.

The earliest dramatic entertainments in the little town of New York were given by officers of the army during the French and Indian War. These young gentlemen greatly impressed some of the young ladies with their histrionic powers, although the more sober of the inhabitants were disgusted with the folly of their antics.

The first theatre was in the rear of 144 Fulton street, as early as 1754. In January, 1760, permission was given to build another theatre in Chapel street, near Beekman. In the following November it was opened with the tragedy "Fair Penitent."

There seems not to have been made any political capital out of DeLancey's act in permitting this theatre to be built. A similar license granted by President Colden was discussed in the Assembly and disapproved; the mayor urged the passage of a law forbidding theatrical performances, and popular sentiment was so much adverse to this form of amusement that in 1766 the theatre in Beekman street was destroyed by a mob.

Another theatre on the north side of John street, between Broadway and Nassau street, was opened December 7, 1762 by The American Company, with Farquhar's comedy "The Stratagem," and the famous Garrick's farce of "Lethe." Thus was the theatrical life of New York really begun.

With the occupation of the city by the British, those who belonged to the highest social set endeavored successfully to forget the troubles that distracted the country, and dinners, and amateur theatricals were freely enjoyed. Then, as often now, charity went hand in hand with pleasure. The "rebel Congress had closed the little red theatre in John street with a view of improving the morals of the country, which had been affected by "theatricals, cock-fighting and horse racing."

This theatre was reopened in January, 1777, as the "Theatre Royal," by the "Garrison Dramatic Club," composed of some of the brightest men in the British army. The surgeon-general of the force, Doctor Beaumont, was manager and principal low-comedian; Major Williams of the Royal Artillery was the star tragedian; Captain Oliver DeLancey was scene painter, etc. The versatile Major John Andre wrote plays, painted scenes, or impersonated Romeo with equal ease and amiability.

The accomplished General Burgoyne, who began as a dramatic author in 1775, by his "Maid of the Oaks," now produced his second drama, "The Heiress."

The theatre in John street was of rude architecture and stood about sixty feet back from the sidewalk. There were two rows of boxes, which with pit and gallery, when filled, yielded about $800 a night. The last performance was given by the British Thespians, June 11, 1781.

In the fall of 1785 there was a movement made for the revival of the theatre, but the Congress had recommended the closing of places of amusement during the war, and Washington had issued orders threatening dismissal upon all officers who engaged in theatrical entertainments, so Lewis Hallam, a popular actor of the old American Company, took his players to the island of Jamaica and remained there until sufficient time after the peace that the inhabitants could again enjoy such entertainments.

From 1766 until 1798 the old John Street Theatre was the only one in the city. On May 5, 1795, the corner stone of the Park Theatre was laid, and in 1798 it was opened.

We have some accounts of the behavior of our forefathers at the theatre. In the play houses in the North it often happened that the moment a well-dressed gentleman entered the pit, he at once became a mark for the wit and insolence of the men in the gallery. They would begin by calling on him to doff his hat in mark of inferiority, for the custom of wearing hats in the theatre was universal. If he obeyed, he was loudly hissed and troubled no more. If he refused, abuses, oaths and indecent remarks were poured out upon him.

It would seem that it could not be a very refined audience where such actions were habitual, yet, as the admittance was quite costly for those days, it could only have been the persons of the better class who were enabled to attend.

The common people sought their amusements in different quarters. Traveling acrobats would give exhibitions on the streets. "Philosophers" would perform chemical and electrical experiments to the great delight and astonishment of the unsophisticated. Wild animals and strange people were frequently exhibited, but in great contrast to the "great white way" of today's Broadway.

Might Have Changed History of America

The first congress of the American colonies was convened in New York city about one hundred sixty-one years ago. The purpose of the convention was to consider the stamp act, Grenville's obnoxious scheme of taxation. Tim Ruggles of Massachusetts was chairman of the congress, where delegates from nine states met.

In its two weeks' session the congress adopted a "Declaration of Rights," written by John Cruger; a "Petition to the King," by Bob Livingston, and a "Memorial to Both Houses of Parliament," from the pen of James Otis.

Had the powers that misruled England at this time paid more attention to the words of these earnest men history might have taken a different turn, but the figurehead on the English throne and the self-inflated ministers and coxcombs, who served him, were deaf to the distant thunder of discontent—and "lost a world."—Chicago Journal.

"Now, gentlemen," said the president of the Wisteria Suburban Golf club, "how soon shall we lay out another links and move into it?"

"Didn't we move three months ago?" asked the chairman of the greens committee.

"We did, but they are putting up another row of apartments on the West side, which entirely blots out the sun."

"How much money is in the treasury?"

"Oh, a couple of millions. We made real money the last time."

"But is this golf?" inquired a dub in the rear.

"My dear boy," replied the president soothingly, "we no longer live in the suburbs to play golf; we live here to make money in real estate deals by moving from one course to another."

SOMEONE'S MOUNTAINS

Someone, the little gnome, who was taking Mahalia around and showing her the Valley of Memories, also wanted to show her the mountains which surrounded the valley.

Someone was the creature people meant when they said that they, perhaps, did not know what a thing meant, but that Someone did.

Someone had also told Mahalia how the happy hours and the jolly memories came to this place after they were through with their time among the real people.

But that whenever the real people wanted them again they could recall them to their memories by thinking of them.

"Now," said Someone, "I must point out the mountains to you.

"We hope you will like our mountains and think this is a trip worth having."

Mahalia thought she had never seen so beautiful a place as this.

"There is the Mountain of Trying to Win the Highest Prize in School. That's a fine mountain. You can see it just off to the right.

"Then there is the Mountain of Trying to Become a Great Musician.

"That is almost the highest mountain we have.

"There is the Mountain of Leading the School Team to Victory. Oh, we have so many mountains.

"You see, they surround our valley of memories because there are so many people who have played a part in building these mountains without realizing it.

"I Must Point Out the Mountains."

"There are some who have tried to win prizes or to help the school team or do something very fine but who haven't quite succeeded.

"In your world they may feel failures. But there is no such thing as a failure in our part of the world.

"For every effort and attempt and feeling and wish to succeed and be of some help to others, to the school or to themselves, has helped to make our mountains.

"Each single effort has added something and that is why our mountains are so very high.

"Here in the valley are all those lovely times we have had which we like to think of again.

"You will see that the flowers each have names attached."

Mahalia went around and looked, and there she found that each flower had a little name attached to it.

"Why I find my own name," she cried excitedly. And there, attached to a bright, bright golden rod was a little piece of paper on which was written: "Mahalia's happiest birthday."

"Oh, that's when I was eight years old—last year," she said. "I just love to think of that birthday."

"Of course," said Someone, "and so it is here for you. The flower itself does not come to you but the memory is sent by the flower whenever it is wanted and the Breeze Brothers carry it to you."

Mahalia looked all about and found so many interesting things to see and read and think about.

She found other gnomes and fairies and brownies and they talked to her in much the same way as Someone had talked to her, for Someone had been wanted and so Someone had dashed off for a little bit.

Just Stepped on Water

Four-year-old C. J. was fond of mud puddles. After a rain one day this summer, he came into the house bearing all the signs of a first-hand acquaintance with a mud puddle. His mother scolded him. Said she: "Why—Why will you wade in those mud puddles?"

Little C. J. answered: "Well, I didn't 'zactly wade, mother. I just stepped on that water, and it went down with me."

Knew It All

Benton was bragging that his father knew "'bout ever'thin'" but Ted was not at all sure that he did.

He could remember several times when he had answered right straight to some question, "Well, really, Ted, I'm sure I don't know."

But he wanted to brag of his father, too, and so he said: "Well, my father doesn't know ever'thin', but we got a dictionary that knows the rest."

Tommy—The man who always comes when papa's not at home.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, Dec. 6.—Miss Cortis Brooks of the Kingston City Hospital training class spent the week end with her parents here.

The six-foot fall of snow in this place prevented the first snow removal problem of the season. The snow was removed but the high winds are causing it to drift back on the roads again causing a considerable obstruction to traffic.

Mrs. Wilbur Johnson has returned to her home at Bovina, after a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Smith.

The property on Barclay Heights recently purchased by Levan Davis, has been newly painted and otherwise much improved under the supervision of William Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Satterlee of Big Indian paid a visit to Mrs. Satterlee's brother, Lyman Smith and wife.

William Brooks had the misfortune to lose a valuable English Fox hound last week, and George Sickler a valuable hog.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Jones and family attended service at Pocoma Sunday.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Fred Cole and son, Walter, and Leon Willis were in Kingston a week ago Saturday.

The clam chowder supper given by the Hall Association on Tuesday evening was well attended and cleared above expenses, $28.68.

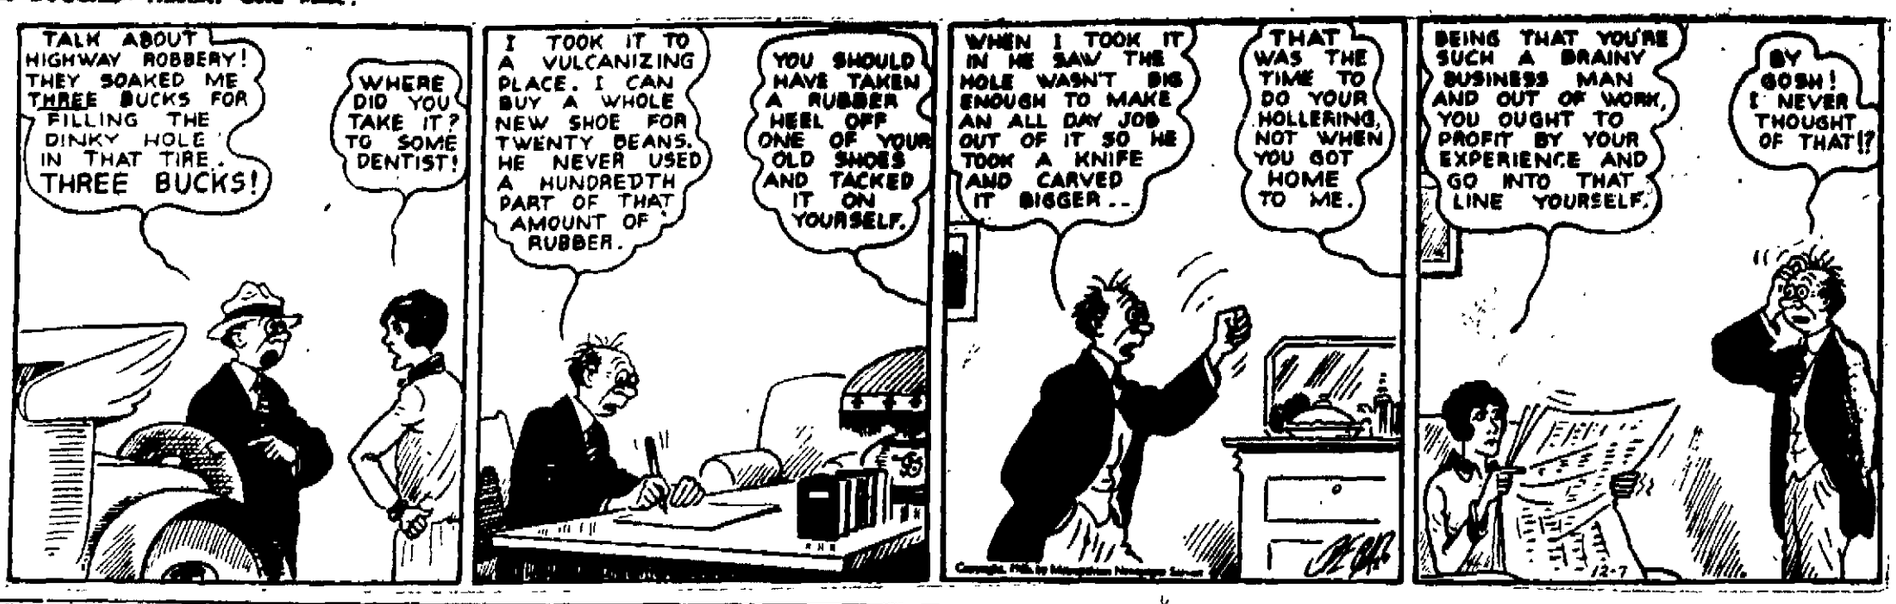
GAS BUGGIES—Another Gold Mine!



TALK ABOUT HIGHWAY ROBBERY! THEY SOAKED ME THREE BUCKS FOR FILLING THE DINKY HOLE IN THAT TIRE. THREE BUCKS!
WHERE DID YOU TAKE IT? TO SOME DENTIST!
I TOOK IT TO A VULCANIZING PLACE. I CAN BUY A WHOLE NEW SHOE FOR TWENTY BEANS. HE NEVER USED A HUNDREDTH PART OF THAT AMOUNT OF RUBBER.
YOU SHOULD HAVE TAKEN A RUBBER HEEL OFF ONE OF YOUR OLD SHOES AND TACKED IT ON YOURSELF.
WHEN I TOOK IT IN HE SAW THE HOLE WASN'T BIG ENOUGH TO MAKE AN ALL DAY JOB OUT OF IT SO HE TOOK A KNIFE AND CARVED IT BIGGER..
THAT WAS THE TIME TO DO YOUR HOLLERING, NOT WHEN YOU GOT HOME TO ME.
BEING THAT YOU'RE SUCH A BRAINY BUSINESS MAN AND OUT OF WORK, YOU OUGHT TO PROFIT BY YOUR EXPERIENCE AND GO INTO THAT LINE YOURSELF.
BY GOSH! I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT!?

BILLY AT THE CIRCUS

A LITTLE boy named Billy was in the tent next to the big tent. He was looking at some of the animals there and also there were some of the Living Wonders sitting upon a platform.

The giraffes were bowing their heads, and making beautiful, low, cordial bows and greeting the crowds coming to the circus.

Billy was quite sure they bowed to him several times so as to make sure that he saw them.

And he bowed back, very politely. The giraffes looked over the other cages and down over the people. Oh, how tall they seemed, and Billy felt very small as he looked up at them.

They Took the Popcorn in Their Hands With Delight.

After he had looked at them for awhile he went and talked to the monkeys and they answered him in their squealing little voices which Billy liked very much.

They ate popcorn which he gave them and they took it in their hands with delight. Then even more delightedly they put it in their mouths and chewed it and swallowed it!

Next Billy went to see the white-tailed Gnu and his brother.

They had white tails and they both looked cross and they shook their heads as though to say:

"We're not bowing to you. Most decidedly not. We're letting you know that we don't care whether you're here or not.

"We are from Africa, though now we travel around these parts."

Then the keeper who took care of the white-tailed Gnu and his brother told Billy that they were so cross they didn't even want to have their cages cleaned.

He said they ate grain and bread and hay and molasses, and so Billy knew that even though they did not act very pleasantly at least they liked some sweetness in their lives, and had, at least, what was known as a "sweet tooth."

As he was looking about, the tallest man who was sitting upon the platform by the tallest lady began to speak.

The tallest lady had been selling pictures of herself and of the tallest man.

She had been saying:

"Now friends, don't you want a souvenir picture of the tallest man in the world? It costs but little and all your life you can show your friends the picture of the tallest man whom you have seen with your own eyes.

"Come, friends, who'll be the first to take advantage of this great and wonderful offer?

"Also I offer my own photograph for sale. I have signed it as well. Signed, you see, by the tallest lady in the world."

That was the way she had been talking and sometimes the smallest lady who was sitting nearby had smiled and nodded her head as much as to say:

"My time will come later."

She had smiled at Billy, too, and Billy had felt that was a great honor.

But now the tallest man was speaking.

"The big show is to begin in ten minutes, folks! Get into your seats for the big show. This department will be open after the big show is over.

"The parade will start now in exactly nine minutes."

Billy thought he spoke as though he considered himself and the tallest lady and the others dress goods or notions or candy when he spoke of them as "this department," but everyone took the advice of the tallest man and started for the big tent.

And now everyone around, ticket man, program man, peanut man, everyone, began shouting:

"The big show is about to begin. Hurry, folks, for the big show."

And when the excitement of waiting just seemed almost too much to stand the band burst into music, the parade began. The big show was starting.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

CHRISTMAS BOXES

THE term "Christmas box" is still applied in this country to the fund distributed among servants or other employees—especially those employed in clubs where "tips" are forbidden. Less frequently is the term now used for gifts sent to relatives and friends and in England the term is commonly used to denote the money given to apprentices, servants, etc., on Christmas. A Christmas "box" is, strictly speaking, not a Christmas gift, but a distribution of money on Christmas Day to inferiors. Formerly this money was collected and presented in a box whence the name. Boxing day, the day when these boxes are supposed to be opened, is still an English holiday. We use the term Christmas box rather loosely in this country but we still use it and the custom which it denotes is one which antedates Christianity. It has been traced back to the Roman festival of the Paganalia which was instituted by Servius Tullius some five hundred and fifty years before the Christian era and was celebrated at the beginning of the year. At this festival an altar was erected in every village upon which the people deposited money to be subsequently distributed to the dependants of the cultivators—for Italy was then a farming country almost entirely. Formerly in England the Christmas boxes of the apprentices were real boxes of a peculiar shape made of clay.

Sahara Once Forested

Dense forests once grew on the Sahara desert and a race of people who subsisted by hunting and killing the wild lived there, says the Dearborn Independent, quoting a Chicago professor.

As Told by Irvin S. Cobb

IT WASN'T HIS MOVE

THIS one, I think, is old enough to be entitled to a revival in its second childhood. As the story runs, a venerable mountaineer residing near the boundary between two Southern states sat one bright afternoon on the stile in front of his cabin busily engaged in following his regular occupation of doing nothing at all. At the edge of the clearing, fifty yards away, suddenly appeared an individual in flannel shirt and laced boots who aimed at the old gentleman a round-barreled instrument mounted on a tripod, which the native naturally mistook for a new kind of repeating rifle. Up went both his hands.

"Don't shoot!" he shouted. "I surrender."

"I'm not fixing to shoot," said the stranger, drawing nearer, "I belong to an engineering crew. We're surveying the state line."

"Shukkins, son," said the old man, "you're away off your beat. The line runs through the gap nearly half a mile down the mounting below here."

"That's where it used to run," said the engineer, "but it seems there was a mistake in the original job of running the line. According to the new survey it'll pass about fifty feet from your house, on the upper side of the hill."

"Say, look a-here, boy," stated the old man, "won't that throw me clear over into the next state?"

"Yep, that's what it'll do."

"Well, that won't never do," demurred the mountaineer. "I was born and raised here. I've always voted here. It looks to me like you fellows ain't got no right to be movin' me plum' out of one state into another."

"Can't help it," said the surveyor. "We have to go by the corrected line."

"Wall," said the old man resignedly, "come to think it over, I don't know but what it's a good thing, after all. I've always heered tell that that was a healthier state than this, anyhow."

Cleared, Home and Happy!

True happiness was spelled in the features of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall when she returned to her home in New Brunswick, N. J., after a jury had acquitted her and two brothers of the murder of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, her husband's sweetheart. Mrs. Hall is shown with her cousin, Arthur Carpender.

Cause and Effect

"Sedentary work," said the college lecturer, "tends to lessen the endurance."

"In other words," butted in the smart student, "the more one sits, the less one can stand."

"Exactly," retorted the lecturer; "and if one lies a great deal, one's standing is lost completely."—The Out look.

MARTYR TO PAIN FOR 16 YEARS

Finds relief after spending much money in vain

After spending a great deal of money on medicines without results, a woman who had suffered from a long-standing case of rheumatism, got quick and complete relief by a simple home treatment.

"I have suffered from rheumatism for 16 years and I have spent a great deal of money in trying to get something which would ease the pain," she writes. "I am grateful to say that in Sloan's Liniment I have found instant relief."

Sloan's helps when other remedies fail because Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up the bodily forces to throw off the poisons that are causing the pain. Then relief comes as a natural consequence.

So easy, pleasant and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub it in. Just apply gently, and the medicine brings the relief.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

"Bad Man" Began His Lawless Life Early

Bill Langley probably was one of the toughest characters that Texas ever produced, Owen P. White tells us, in Collier's Magazine. According to his family Bible he was born of honest, God-fearing parents, but he took to shooting early When he was only fourteen years old he was doing his daily dozen with a pair of six-shooters and filling all the trees in the ancestral wood lot with clusters of leaden bullets, generally grouped a dozen in a spot and no spot more than six inches in diameter. Thus early in life did Bill make a bid for fame He learned to shoot with both hands, afoot or horseback it was the same to him. But, sad to relate of one so young Bill's conscience apparently was just as well trained as his shooting eye It never bothered him in the slightest degree Hence, before he was nineteen years he had six nicks on his gun and had been hanged by a Texas vigilance committee. But the hanging did not "take." Members of the party fired shots at him as they rode away. One of the bullets clipped the rope, weakening it, and a few moments later he dropped to the ground and quickly recovered. After several years of wild depredation, Langley was executed in Giddings, Texas, October 11, 1878.

Joel Chandler Harris Never a Social "Lion"

The first published work of Joel Chandler Harris, creator of "Uncle Remus," was set into type by hand as ideas came to his head, without first being committed to paper, says J. T. Manry of Plain Dealing, who worked with Harris on the Monroe Advertiser in Forsyth, Ga., shortly after the close of the Civil war

Harris would not read his compositions after they were in print if he could avoid it. He taught Manry to read proof and thus avoided having to read what he had "written" with type. Harris was extremely shy and declined to meet many persons. Once Harris, Mark Twain and George W. Cable met in New Orleans. Twain recounts the instance in his "Life on the Mississippi." When the New Orleans children saw "Uncle Remus" they were greatly disapointed and exclaimed:

"Why, he's white."

To console them, a move was made to have Harris read the Tar-Baby story aloud. But he never had read aloud to people and was too shy to make the venture.

Mystery of Surf Tragedy Unsolved

Coroner's Jury Fails to Determine Cause In Death of Louis Sweeney and Madame Maingot—Drank From Bottles Before Leaping Into Water.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Death, interrupting a holiday party to end the friendship of a prominent mining engineer and a wealthy woman subject of Great Britain, has left a mystery here that today remained unsolved.

A coroner's jury yesterday failed to determine a cause in the death of Louis F. Sweeney of New York and Minneapolis and Madame Rabelais Maingot, of Trinidad, South America, whose bodies were recovered Sunday from the ocean near Venice. Presumably they drowned. An investigation, however, revealed bits of evidence that suggested the ordering of an autopsy today.

Both Left Notes.

Two empty bottles from which the couple were seen to drink, and the fact that among their effects were found notes requesting notification of relatives "in case of accident" were the disclosures upon which the new developments were based.

The man and woman, enjoying their friendship in circumstances which authorities consider rather strange, motored to Venice Sunday with a party of friends. They had been here only a few days and were registered at different hotels.

Distress Follows Drinks.

After changing to bathing suits, Sweeney and Madame Maingot chatted with friends at a pavilion a few minutes and then walked to the water together. In a few minutes Sweeney returned, obtained two bottles containing a fluid resembling grape juice, the couple drank, waved to their companions and leaped into the water. Not until they were seen to be in distress a few moments later was alarm felt, and they were dead before aid could reach them.

Very little was known of their friendship, even among their intimate friends, and their effects revealed little to throw light on the affair. They were known to have met in South America several years ago while Sweeney was on one of his prospecting jaunts.

Agreed With the Jury

A slightly deaf old man who had been making whisky all his life was finally picked up and arraigned under the drastic Colorado still possession law. The jury, without leaving the box, returned a verdict of guilty.

"Old man," said his lawyer, "the jury says you are guilty."

"Hay?"

"The jury says you are guilty," he repeated loudly in his ear.

"In what degree?"

"There is no degree in a still case."

"Guilty all over, then?"

"Yes."

"Hay?"

"Yes," shouted the lawyer.

"Well, that's what I told you in the first place, but you said you could clear me. Wish now I'd got that judge to defend me. Get him next time."—Everybody's Magazine.

Rain and the Moon

Near the equator the position of the young moon never makes an angle of more than 30 degrees with the horizon, and it is generally in an even more nearly horizontal position, so that in a part of the world notorious for regions of heavy rainfall, the moon is, according to the proverb, always a "dry" one. The final absurdity of the idea that changes in the moon denote rain is the case of the crescent moon as seen from the North and South poles, where it is always what the proverb describes as "wet," for at those places the line joining the tips of the crescent always makes an angle of less than 25 degrees to the vertical; yet the polar regions are characterized by so little precipitation in the form of rain and snow that they rank among the arid regions of the globe.

Buried Treasure

A grim statistician announces that under the soil in the cemeteries of this country a treasure estimated at $30,000,000,000 has been buried since the beginning of American history. No one can dispute these figures. No one will care to analyze them carefully.

The ancient tombs of Egypt have given up treasure of priceless value. Excavations in buried cities have shown that man has ever held to the custom of burying jewels and luxuries and valuable trinkets with the dead. The sword and helmet of many a warrior have gone with him into the dark and narrow bed.—Twin Engineer.

Velvet Smartest for Evening Wear

Can Be Plaited or Shirred; Laces Also Very Much in Favor.

If you are considering evening attire for fall or winter there are many attractive fabrics from which to choose. So all there is for you to do is to decide upon the style you desire and select your material accordingly.

Velvet is undoubtedly the smartest of them all in sheer, supple weights which can be plaited or shirred. Laces, too, are very much in vogue; thread laces soft and fine, and heavier ones where the pattern presents a glistening cere effect. Lustrous crepe-backed satins are used, while the filmier georgettes and chiffons are very effective when posed over self-colored or contrasting slips.

White is used especially in velvets and satins and black is employed by all the haut couturiers. Then there are indescribably lovely greens, called in some houses sea shades, with wonderful sea and robin's-egg blues, as well as those with a tinge of lavender. Bright blue on the order of turquoise is also smart.

But when we come to the vin shades and the rose tones, which somewhat resemble ashes of roses, observes a Paris fashion correspondent in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, I cannot find words to describe them. They are so beautiful and really are the new color note of the season.

Trimmings, too, are a bit unusual. If you like fringe you now can use it to your heart's content.

The loveliest ostrich fringes are obtainable in shaded and solid colorings. This feather trimming is applied as a wide border, extending from just below the hips to the frock hem, or it is used in clusters and pompons, and in a variety of other modes, which make it very new and attractive. Rodier shows a silk fringe woven to imitate colored beads, which is exceptionally pleasing.

Embroideries of rhinestones and crystals and colored sequins are very effective for evening. They are used in solid patterns, rather than to outline a motif, and often form girdles and other waistline garniture.

We have only touched upon colors, trimmings and materials for evening. As to styles and silhouettes, they are as varied as the taste of the wearer suggests. And this very latitude of choice indicates that the fall and winter modes are unusually smart and alluring.

Skirt Lengths Vary

Skirt lengths, according to the haute couture who dominate dress designing, are not so important as women think. Some designers favor showing the knee while others insist the knee must be covered. In truth, the smart skirt length depends on the build and taste of the wearer. The woman with an ungainly calf is as much in fashion with a long skirt as the dainty maid built on more slender lines with her knees barely covered.

New Square Designs

The latest sport dresses made from imported French materials are on the square and the squares are on the dresses. These woolen fabrics are decorated with large shaded squares. The graduation is made by the loosening or tightening of some of the coverings of the yarns in weaving. The heavier of these fabrics are used for motoring and traveling coats.

Magnifying Mirrors

Magnifying glasses have long been familiar to the feminine eye, but the magnifying mirror of small size has been principally associated with physicians and hospitals. Germany is now sending over magnifying mirrors that are about four inches in diameter, with an adjustable composition handle that may be used as a prop.

Leather or Suede Belts

In the recent exhibitions of French models one of the outstanding features of most of the tailored and sport dresses, coats and ensembles is the narrow belt of leather or of suede.

Be Careful of Rust

Rust stains mackintoshes, shirts and buttocks. Rusty water ruins clothes in the laundry. Wells are stained and ceilings fall when pipes leak and rugs and furnitures are frequently damaged by dripping water.

Change Schedule Of Court Terms

The schedule of terms of the Supreme court, naturalization court, Ulster county court and children's court for the year 1927 has been compiled, also for terms of the Appellate division of the Supreme court, third district, at Albany. In the latter the November term has been changed from the second Tuesday in November to the third Tuesday of that month.

Naturalization court in Ulster county will be held by Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck at the court house on the first Thursday in February instead of first Friday in January, and on fifth Friday of September instead of fourth Saturday as in 1926, other dates remaining the same.

At the March term of the Supreme court, which convenes on the first Monday of that month, Justice Nichols will preside instead of Justice Staley, and the October term date has been changed from second Monday in that month to the first Monday.

There are no changes in times of holding terms of Ulster county court and of children's court by Judge Joseph M. Fowler.

Straight Line Is Feature of Coats

New Fur Wraps for Wintry Days Are Sure to Be Comfortable.

Perhaps the most significant models in the recent Renee fall and winter exhibition were the fur coats, which are always made on the most becoming lines with a view to embracing the slender silhouette the smart Parisienne demands. Particularly effective, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, is one in gray caracul trimmed with gray astrakhan. It is made perfectly straight, and is worn over a charming frock of gray velours de laine trimmed with horizontal lines of darned silk, the ends being left to hang in fringed tassels. Another is all in sage green moleskin with a georgette dress of the same shade.

The uneven hem line is frequent in the Renee collection. One-sided effects are very popular also, both in afternoon and evening gowns. Many of the latter are made sloping off one shoulder. Others have a side drapery that slopes down on the opposite side to a shoulder drapery following the same movement.

Scarfs appear on many frocks, some wide and others narrow. A new and original type is made of wide ribbon velvet lined with georgette or chiffon like the dress it trims.

Renee's sport clothes are quiet and restrained. There is a gray-green ensemble in spotted tweed with a cape trimmed with buttons, and fur dyed to match the cloth. The dress beneath it is straight in line, trimmed with buttons and made with a V-neck and wide box plaits. A clever coat is in gray lainage lined with giraffe skin, worn over a dress of gray djersa made with a long tunic and strapped with the lainage. Yet another coat of diamond check tweed trimmed with fur is cut with a full circular movement and raglan sleeves. It is worn over a simple frock of elephant gray crepella.

The cape coat appears frequently chez Renee. It is trimmed with the new Siamese fur and many buttons in one instance. In another dressier model it is made of black cloth with pointed cape sleeves of broadtail and a wide fur collar.

There is much front fullness to gowns with a straight back, and a swathed belt movement, sometimes coming only from the side seams, terminates in a bow in the center front that may repeat the line of a bow finishing a V-neck. The openwork twisted lace-like velvet trimming which Renee habitually exploits borders the skirt.

Elaborate Coat Linings Are Used in Fur Coats

Linings used in fur coats this season are extremely lovely since many of them are embroidered or appliqued with velvet flowers down the side fronts or around the hem. Many furriers are showing unlined fur coats and permitting one to select one's own lining and floral design. This is far more sensible than showing a ready-lined coat since no two women have the same idea as to linings. One can have one of these exquisite embroidered linings placed in a coat at reasonable cost.

Plaits in and Out

Plaits continue to be "in" so far as fashion is concerned. The problem most women, especially those of stout figures, have to solve is how to keep them in. If one has not a maid, it frequently means constant application of an electric iron. But some manufacturers of knit fabrics are now weaving the plaits right in place and these cannot come out.

Cape of White Crepe

A cape of white crepe de chine to be worn with an afternoon dress is being featured. It is quite plain with a small rolled collar attached to which are two tie strings worn in a bow at the neck. This cape has no lining and its only trimming is a deep fringe around the bottom.

Makes "Six Million" and Dies.

Boston, Dec. 7 (AP).—Joseph S. Donovan, who made "his million" and retired at the age of 46, only eleven months ago, died today. He went to a hospital a few weeks ago for observation for a kidney ailment.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Stock prices displayed a strong undertone today, but chief speculative activity was again centered in a few high priced industrial issues.

Trading continued to be largely professional, although a growing public interest was reported in issues which hold promise of special dividend developments before the end of the year. Relatively firm money rates also tended to restrict trading.

President Coolidge's message to Congress was favorably received by the financial district, the highest prices of the day being recorded after its recommendations became known.

Sugar shares continued to respond to higher commodity prices, South Porto Rican and Manaiti preferred leading the advance in that group. Some of the oils also began to show the signs of activity and strength, while the motors presented several strong spots.

International Harvester was bid up over four points to a new record high at 154¾, United States Cast Iron Pipe jumped over five points and General Motors, American Zinc preferred and Gotham Silk Hosiery sold three to four points higher. On the other hand, Loose Wiles common and second preferred, which recorded sensational advance yesterday, broke seven and six points, respectively, and weakness cropped out in Continental Baking A and Warner Pictures.

Rails held fairly steady in quiet trading.

Great Russian Had Hair-Trigger Temper

Turgenev found himself involved in futile arguments with his young friend, which only ended in sullen tiffs. Thus we hear Tolstoy shouting with a flash of his maddening steel-gray eyes "I stand in the doorway with a dagger and a saber and I say, 'As long as I live, no one shall enter here.' That I call conviction. And you—you're trying to hide your real thoughts from each other and you call that conviction."

Turgenev, in the thin falsetto of rage, gasps irrelevantly: "Why do you come here? This isn't where you belong. Go to Princess So-and-So."

"I don't have to ask you where to go. Do I? Anyway, this talk won't turn into conviction because of my coming."

"Darling Tolstoy," says a friendly witness, trying to make peace, "do calm yourself. You know how he esteems and loves you."

But Tolstoy, with dilating nostrils, only growls:

"I won't stand for it! He does it to tease me. It's on purpose that he's pacing up and down and wagging his detestable haunches."—From Tchernikoffsky's "Turgenev."

Thoughtful Burglar

A man convicted of burglary recently in Australia is reputed to be the most obliging member of his craft. He broke into the home of a store owner, extracted the keys to the safe and store from the owner's pockets, walked a mile to the store, where he looted the safe of $300, and then went back to the owner's home, replaced the keys and departed, after having closed the window he had forced open on his first entry.

Disputed Right of Way

A big golden eagle, measuring nearly eight feet from tip to tip, crashed into a swiftly moving government airmail plane near Elko, Nev., causing his own immediate destruction and damaging the plane so badly as to necessitate its being held at Elko for repairs. The pilot said that immediately after the impact it was necessary for him to use all his aileron control to keep the plane from turning over.—Indianapolis News.

ST. PETER'S LOSE HARD GAME TO RHINEBECK

The St. Peter's basketball team journeyed to Rhinebeck Saturday evening where they were defeated in one of the largest fought games ever played on the Rhinebeck court by a score of 35 to 33.

The first half of the game was played under professional rules and the second under A. A. U. rules.

The Saints being more familiar with the professional style of playing led their Dutchess county opponents by three points, the score at half time ending, St. Peter's, 21; Rhinebeck, 18. The second half started under A. A. U. rules. Rhinebeck soon got off to a two-point lead which McNally's men were unable to overtake.

Friday night St. Peter's will travel to Highland to meet the fast team representing that place. Highland has won all games played to date and are confident of adding St. Peter's to their list.

Dempsey Trains For Tunney Bout

Los Angeles, Dec. 7 (AP).—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, waiting the formality of a few warming up fights, will start training next week in the hope of having a return bout with Gene Tunney, to whom he lost the world's title last September at Philadelphia.

This he announced today, saying: "If I can come back, I'm through with the fight game. I don't want any 'set ups'".

Replying to reports that he had been poisoned before the fight with Tunney, the former champion declared: "All this stuff about throwing fights, being poisoned or worried to death is a lot of hokum. Tunney can whip any man in the ring today. He is a stiff counter puncher and while I think he could have whipped Firpo—and probably held Carpentier even—Jess Willard and Bill Brennan would have slaughtered him.

Rickard Controls Heavy Contenders

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Tex Rickard's monopoly on the services of four leading contenders for the heavyweight title during the 1927 fistic season is the "worst thing that could have happened to the fight game in New York," Humbert J. Fugazy, promoter rival of Rickard, said today.

The Texan's corner to the heavyweight market was disclosed yesterday when Rickard announced that he had added a long term contract on the services of "Boston Jack" Sharkey to those of Jim Maloney of Boston, Harry Persson, the Swedish stonecutter, and Paolino Uzcudum, Basque woodchopper of Spain, who arrived here from Argentina in quest of heavyweight laurels a week ago.

Paul Berlenbach, former king of the light-heavyweights, although under contract with Fugazy to meet Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia dancing master, and a second opponent if he should defeat Loughran, is expected to join the Rickard group shortly. Berlenbach is now on the Pacific coast on a vacation trip, taken when the husky pummeler gained the consent of the New York State Boxing Commission to postpone the Loughran match after Fugazy explained to that body that Berlenbach was in poor shape, after a rigorous summer campaign. Sharkey's contract with Rickard calls for four matches after the Boston boy's agreement to box only for Fugazy until February 1 expires.
